A THERAPEUTIC COMMUNITY

Annual Report
2023/24

Our Mission

Trusting in Providence, and building upon the faith-centered heritage of our founding members, we are committed to serving needs and to fostering talents of people in the Cowichan Valley, especially of those not easily accepted elsewhere, through our therapeutic community at Providence Farm.

Our focus shall be upon the renewal of the body and spirit, and upon people caring for the soil, and the soil nurturing the people.

It is with gratitude that we express our heartfelt thanks to the Sisters for entrusting the mission of Providence to us, to our founders for building a brilliant foundation from which we strive to build good work upon, and to all those who came before us and walked gently upon this land.

Our Vision

To responsibly steward the organization's entrusted assets for the community's benefit.

To be a leader in demonstrating the therapeutic benefits of harnessing nature and community as allies.

To maintain organizational momentum while respecting the legacy of past contributors.

"There is longing among all people & creatures to have a sense of purpose and worth. To satisfy the common longing in all of us we must respect each other." ~ Chief Dan George

Our Purpose

“...the Farm was intended to be a place of opportunity, open to those with unmet needs... a place to grow (figuratively and literally), take risks, support collective dreams, and create social change”

Jack Hutton – Founding Father

It is an honor to uphold the foundation of Providence lent to us by Jack Hutton, Sister Frieda Raab, Jack Pearce, and Devon Mills (founding members) and the tremendous efforts of all those who came alongside them since 1979.

Providence Farm serves those most vulnerable in the Cowichan Valley. We are a Trauma Informed agency, providing adult Community Inclusion Day programs through a Person-Centered lens. Our application of practice is celebrated in Nature Based and Horticultural Therapies. In 2023 - 2024 Providence Farm provided opportunities for growth and healing to over 100 participants, individuals with diverse abilities and needs through contract supported referrals (CLBC and VIHA).

Together we steward the earth and care for each other, creating opportunities for renewal and learning in safe and supportive spaces by working with the land.

A note from Our Participants

Acknowledging our participants as critical stakeholders in Providence Farm, programs celebrate participant voices and ideas to influence the spirit of programing; ensuring that we navigate forward with genuineness and sensitivity. Commemorating last year's tradition, we workshopped the concept of what teamwork means and how it is reflected in Providence.

Participants wish to share this community workshopped message with 2023-24 Providence supporters:

Dear friends,

Over the past three years, we have learned to rely on and invest in each other to stay safe. Drawing on our shared strengths, unique talents, perspectives, and abilities to create a truly collaborative community built on trust and the spirit of teamwork.

Our gift to you is the confidence to build trust in relationships.

We are individuals with brain injuries, developmental diversity, neurodivergence, physical disabilities, mental health concerns, diagnoses, and age-related illnesses – our individual uniqueness lends to Providence the beauty of kaleidoscope lenses, experiences, and perspectives.

We are “weeeee”, good, Nija's, sweet kitties, respectful, hilarious, happy, grateful, accepting, knowledgeable, cheerful, patient, resilient, kind, generous, fancy, excellent bonded, contemplative, cohesive and inspired.

Friendly, Accepting, Respectful, Mindful, Inclusive, Loving Y – we are FARMILY

"True belonging doesn't require that we change who we are; it requires that we be who we are." ~ Brené Brown

Our Board of Directors

Dear Members,

There has never been a better time to be at Providence Farm, whether as a board member, staff member, participant or volunteer. The vibe is happy and productive, the farm looks good, the harvest has been productive, and the board has accomplished a lot. All of this is reflected in our social media, so I hope that you are following us on Facebook!

In this AGM package, you will learn about many of the exciting things that have been taking place on the Farm. Although the Board of Directors undertakes the distinctly unexciting work of governance for this great organization, we are proud of our accomplishments also. In 2023-24, we have:

Reviewed our strategic plan for 2021-2024, and celebrated our accomplishments within that period of time (more than 50% of the actions outlined in the Plan were completed within the plan period, and more were underway);

Drafted a new strategic plan for 2025-2028 (4 years), which is focused on the key areas of programming, land management, organizational financial stability, and becoming a more inclusive organization;

Adopted Providence Farm's Forest Management Plan, where the forest will be managed based on our commitment to protect its ecological, therapeutic, and cultural values, with the aim of supporting the forest to become an old forest. We have a precious fragment of the endangered Coastal Douglas-fir ecosystem in our hands to steward effectively. This stewardship also requires resources to manage it, so with the support of some angel investors, we are exploring carbon credit options to generate those resources;

This stewardship also requires resources to manage it, so with the support of some angel investors, we are exploring carbon credit options to generate those resources;

Adopted an investment policy. Members may remember that last year we made a bylaw change, to eliminate the specificity of the restrictions on how Providence Farm invests. There are new investment tools out there today that the bylaws did not anticipate. Working together with knowledgeable advisors, VIPCA now has a policy that permits us to invest any reserves, windfalls, restricted donations, or endowment funds in conservative, yet effective, ways to ensure that those funds do not lose value simply due to inflation;

Adopted a capital plan, outlining our key priorities for capital improvements on the Farm, which include:

- Undertaking CTRA Barn repairs and renovations,
- Upgrading the safety and accessibility of Providence House,
- Relocating the driveway, and
- Converting the lower floor of the McKinnon Building to support program delivery.

There truly has never been a better time to be at the Farm, and we encourage our members to join us for our celebrations and fundraising events, or join us as volunteers, whether working in the Fix-It Shop or on the Board of Directors.

On behalf of the Board,
Beverly Suderman, Chair

A note from Our Executive Leadership

Over the course of the past year, the trifecta of “the Head (Leah Boisvert, Director of Operations), the Heart (Stephanie Kok, Director of Therapeutic Programs), and the Hands (Conrad Murphy, Director of Infrastructure and Agriculture)” have bravely navigated forward as a collaborative team. Guided by the values of respect, love, generosity, and kindness, they continue to grow a thriving, inclusive community.

With these values in mind, Providence Farm's shared leadership pilot, now employed and shining with a year's polish from 2023-2024, embraces a contemporary approach to leadership. This model promotes collaboration and inclusivity, aligning with the evolving needs of our community.

With the continued encouragement and opportunity to nurture a healthy, collaborative relationship with the Board—built on the reciprocity of trust, respect, and appreciation—we hold our participants, practitioners, and support teams in the highest regard and confidence. We continue to promote the virtues and values of integrity and harmonious relationships. We are wisely promoting sustainability through an investment in collaboration and networking with other like-minded agencies (Glenora Farm, NACL), learning from supportive organizations (BCEO, Board Voice, CLBC, BC Non-Profit Leadership), and seeking expertise in specialty areas such as CARF Accreditation, Carbon Credits and Forest Management. Our team's stability and diverse skill set remain invaluable assets.

With open minds and hearts, our shared leadership team continues to offer the VIPCA community and our respected friends in the Cowichan Valley a renewed and active commitment to sensitivity, passion, genuineness, enthusiasm, trust, and collaboration. We remain dedicated to fostering optimism, perseverance, and progressive direction for those currently in our care, while honoring the legacy of those who came before us and preparing thoughtfully for those who will come after us. Our focus remains on the renewal of body and spirit, and the ongoing relationship of people caring for the soil, and the soil nurturing the people.

We extend our deepest gratitude to our Board of Directors for their tireless efforts, camaraderie, and unwavering trust, which continue to strengthen our mission and support our journey.

Leah Boisvert, Stephanie Kok,
& Conrad Murphy

Our Community

VIPCA proudly acknowledges that Providence Farm resides on the traditional and unceded territory of Cowichan First Nations.

This year has fueled Providence Farm's intentional efforts to create a safe and welcoming environment that inspires a sense of belonging for everyone. In an age where social media wields significant influence and elevates various special interests, we actively engage in thoughtful conversations around important causes. We recognize the myriad colors that contribute to the vibrant tapestry of our community, understanding that capturing every nuance is a continuous journey. By fostering genuine inclusion, we ensure that all voices contribute to our shared narrative.

As a community, we dedicate ourselves to ethical responsibility and commit to practicing Person-Centered Care. Moving forward, we advocate for the profound simplicity of belonging.

We recognize social belonging as a "critical human need that individuals must satisfy to maintain their identity, physical well-being, and mental health" (Maslow). We actively encourage individuals to self-actualize by providing the emotional resources they need to develop their authentic selves. Providence Farm embraces and celebrates the uniqueness and wholeness of each person. With unconditional positive regard, we honor personal values and ways of being that may differ from our own. Together, we promote belonging by standing alongside individuals, meeting them where they are and as they are.

With open hearts, we continue to encourage a future that actively fosters healing and trust as we move forward together.

Welcome to Providence Farm!

Our Therapeutic Programming

Never underestimate the resilience gifted to us through nature, community, trust, friendship, and love.

Our 2023-24 Providence and Extended Family Members demonstrated strong and innovative spirits by maximizing the opportunities set into motion following last year's period of reflection and calm. Programs continued to refine and analyze our approach to Nature-Based Practice, using measurable objectives gathered from the previous year's insights. The Case Management team excelled with the completion of Person-Centered Care Plan rubrics, and we attracted talents from both near and far to join our team. We facilitated professional development training centered on themes of trust and appreciation and continued to pursue the realization of CARF accreditation.

Our confidence in the research and evidence-based practices of Positive Psychology, coupled with our appreciation for the power of neuroplasticity, has driven our success in deconstructing the negative impacts of COVID-19 in our community. This success is evidenced by outstanding and consistent participant attendance, high retention rates, lower anxiety levels, increased engagement, and improvements in self-efficacy and autonomy. The continued efficacy of this practice has become the best possible contagion; infectious smiles, laughter, testimonies of accomplishment, and expressions of love are the welcomed 'plagues' we see every day.

In 2023, we continued to pilot, assess, and shape our Person-Centered Care Plans in collaboration with participants and staff. We actively sought feedback from our participants as stakeholders to ensure that their personal goals were accurately reflected, captured, and reported. This process required thoughtful consideration, patience, and time. Providence supports a diverse range of abilities and cognitive functioning, including individuals with neurodivergence (Autism), developmental disabilities, and those navigating traumatic brain injuries.

Creating a document that serves such a wide spectrum of abilities presented challenges, as it was crucial to develop an approach that was respectful, dignified, and inclusive of all. It required careful adaptation to ensure that language and structure were accessible and empowering, accommodating the needs of each individual while upholding their dignity. With the insightful perspectives and expertise of our Case Management team, we developed a document that embodies Providence's commitment to inclusivity and accessibility, which is now proudly implemented.

"There is no Wi-Fi in the forest, but I promise you will find a better connection." ~ Ralph Smart

"Nature-Based Practitioners, encompassing our entire Providence team, were inspired to engage in training that aligned with the leadership team's shared vision of building layers of trust internally and externally to promote stability and ensure sustainability. Cliff Thorbes led an invaluable workshop based on the Personality Dimensions series, offering an emotional exploration of our strengths and perceived areas for growth. This workshop fostered deep connection, camaraderie, and insight into how we can collaborate to maximize both our personal and professional agency and potential. Providence continues to cultivate a positive work culture grounded in the core values of our FARMILY."

Illuminating the power and strength found in collaboration reflects the essence and success of Providence Farm's legacy. The principle that 'nothing works alone in nature' guided our programming efforts in 2023-24, as we planted the seeds of collaboration to nurture relationships and cultivate partnerships designed to reap a reciprocal harvest, nourishing not just ourselves but our extended Family. This year, we emphasized sustainability and trust in one another, recognizing the strength that comes from working together. Our partnerships with land partners like CTRA (Cowichan Therapeutic Riding Association) enabled us to explore program expansion opportunities through Equine Assisted Learning. We also facilitated shared learning experiences through services or internships with universities, including Camosun College of Horticulture, University of Victoria (MA SW), and VIU Human Services Programs. Additionally, we benefited from the invaluable consultation and support of our friends at Glenora Farm, Clements Center, and NACL (Nanaimo Association for Community Living). These collaborations have become integral to our mission, ensuring a legacy of sustainability and shared growth.

Gratitude: Programs wishes to offer our sincere appreciation and deepest gratitude to our participants – our chosen FARMILY. Thank you for lending to us your courage, for inspiring our direction and purpose, and for reminding us of the healing power of unconditional positive regard.

Enthusiastically yours,
Stephanie Kok

Our Finance and Fund Development

Community is an integral part of what makes us thrive at Providence Farm, and the financial operations of our organization are no exception. Our partnerships with community referral agencies—such as those focused on brain injuries, mental health, community inclusion programs, and senior services—provide us with a consistent base of funding and connect us with individuals who need our support. Our commitment to addressing the needs of the Cowichan Valley remains at the forefront of our efforts.

While we greatly appreciate the support from these community agencies, the operational costs of managing 400 acres of forest and agricultural lands, and 96,000 square feet of infrastructure, far exceed the prescribed service delivery rates outlined in our contracts. With our mission-driven goal to steward the land in a sustainable way we look to the broader community for assistance in covering the expenses necessary to ensure Providence Farm remains a vital community asset for decades to come.

With this long-term vision in mind, the 2023/24 fiscal year saw significant efforts dedicated to the development of a long-range capital plan. Once completed, this plan will help us address the infrastructure needs of the Farm, ensuring both short-term solutions and long-term sustainability for our organization and the many community partners who utilize the Farm for our mutual benefit.

Additionally, the 2023/24 fiscal year marked the completion of our Forest Management plan. With this comprehensive document in place, our focus now shifts to the operational management of the forest and surrounding land. By taking an ecosystems-based approach, we recognize the importance of community support and partnerships in managing the expenses associated with healthy forest stewardship.

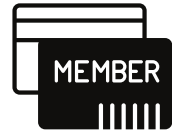

As we work towards large-scale projects and capital investments, we are confident that our relationships with the broader community will continue to flourish, presenting new opportunities for partnership and support.

Our Site and Agriculture

The 2023-2024 fiscal year was marked by our efforts to balance the maintenance of aging infrastructure with the advancement of new and innovative projects that address the evolving accessibility needs of the community we serve. This year the board of directors prioritized the importance of managing our extremely rare coastal Douglas fir ecosystem, which resulted in the development of a forest management plan and the commencement of its initial implementation steps.

The St. Ann Gazebo is a much-loved area for our participants to enjoy and serves as the backdrop for many of the weddings that take place in the gardens each year. With generous support through the New Horizons Grant our team was able to increase the footprint of the St. Ann gazebo, increasing its accessibility, while replacing critical structural components of roof system. This project will ensure this structure will be utilized for programming and events long into the future.

Accessibility continues to be of paramount importance as we strive to create an inclusive space for all those who experience Providence Farm. To ensure those who use wheelchairs or walkers can enjoy the therapeutic benefits of gardening in the greenhouse the site team collaborated with participants and staff to design and build a wheelchair accessible raised bed from locally sourced cedar. The raised bed is U-shaped and allows the wheelchair user to sit underneath a portion of the bed so they can access the bed on three sides. Projects of this nature are truly inspiring and serve to galvanize our team toward the shared goal of inclusivity. Big thank you to Veridian Energy for their financial support.

As we experience a warming climate and local annual precipitation declining the risk of wildfire has increased dramatically. With the creation of our forest management plan the board of directors has identified key steps to protecting the ecological, programmatic and cultural aspects of forested lands we steward. One such step, funded by a local angel investor, completed in 2023 was the clearing of the mount Tzouhalem trails. With the help of Khowutzun Forest Service a significant portion of the trails were cleared, making it possible for emergency services to access the mountain in case of fire. Trail access will also allow future work such as thinning an overgrown Christmas tree plantation, removing fuel from the forest floor and selective pruning to reduce the risk of a surface fire transitioning to a canopy fire.

The work we engage in at Providence Farm can at times be incredibly challenging, in these moments I am reminded what an honour it is to aid in the stewardship of these lands, and be a part of this vibrant, growing community!

Our Volunteers

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to all the friends in our community who generously volunteer their time, energy, and spirit. Your unwavering dedication, commitment, and inspiration have transformed our farm into the special place it is today. We not only gain from your talents and hard work but also cherish the kindness, friendship, and guidance you provide, helping us nurture a true sense of belonging. Your comfort, expertise, and support are invaluable to our mission. Thank you sincerely for all that you do.

In 2023-24, our volunteers contributed to a remarkable array of endeavors. From our Founding Fathers crew, who faithfully report for duty every Friday to provide countless hours of support with site maintenance and agriculture, to our devoted culinary enthusiasts who lend a hand in the kitchen, each effort is invaluable. Our resident fashionistas in Farm Fashions deliver warm customer service, while the diligent members of Saint Ann's Garden Club offered essential administrative support. We also appreciate the volunteers who helped to mow our lawns, create memorable seasonal events, and students from Queen Margarets whose generosity and social consciousness shone through in their efforts. To our beatification "fairy" who brings the sparkle when no one is looking to reflect the pride of Providence. The comradery and support we find in our local Shriners, Rotary and Lions Clubs is precious. The craftsmanship of our talented woodworkers, the ingenuity of our mechanics in the Fix It Shop, the green-thumbed Camosun Horticultural Technicians, volunteers nurturing our gardens, and the bakers who delight us with confections for our seniors all contribute to the vibrant spirit of our community.

Thank you once again to our volunteers, not only for all that you do for us but also for the invaluable lessons you teach us. Your contributions extend far beyond the hours you dedicate; you fill our spaces with joy, laughter, and inspiration. Your presence brings a warmth that enhances our community, creating an atmosphere where everyone feels welcome and valued. The energy and enthusiasm you share uplift those around you, fostering connections that inspire growth and collaboration. We are profoundly grateful for the spirit you bring to our farm, reminding us of the profound impact of kindness and generosity.
